Olds RCMP arrest man wanted for Calgary murders

Noel West/MVP Staff

Olds RCMP, with assistance from Didsbury RCMP, apprehended an individual about a kilometre north of the intersection of Rge. Rd. 15 and Twp Rd. 320 in MVC around 3:30 p.m. May 16. The man was taken into custody in connection with the discovery of a woman and boy found dead in a Calgary home earlier in the day.

BY PAUL EVEREST
MVP Staff

Olds RCMP, with help from Mounties from Didsbury, arrested a Calgary man on May 16 now charged with murdering a woman and child found dead in a Calgary home earlier in the day.

Guevara Wilson Clorina, 26, was taken into custody at about 3:30 p.m. when local police tracked down the Acura sedan he was driving on Rge. Rd. 15 just north of that road's intersection with Twp. Rd. 320 in Mountain View County west of the Olds-Didsbury Airport.

Police had received information that a suspicious vehicle associated with the home where the bodies of Chona Manzano, 35, and her five-year-old son Gabriel Manzano were found had left the scene of the murders and police circulated details of the vehicle to nearby policing agencies.

Police had discovered Manzano and her son in "serious medical distress" at roughly 12:50 p.m. at a home in the 200 block of Evanspark Circle NW in Calgary after a neighbour called 911, a Calgary Police spokesman said.

They were pronounced dead at the scene.

Police believe the suspect is related to the deceased woman and boy, but he is not an immediate family member and did not reside in the same home.

The father of the boy and other children linked to the home where the murders took place were found safe, police said on May 16.

Acting Cpl. S.D. Bereza, a spokesman for the Olds RCMP, said police in Calgary located the suspect vehicle on Rge. Rd. 15 by "pinging" the suspect's cellphone to locate the nearest cellphone tower.

Calgary police then sent information to Olds and Didsbury RCMP advising them that the Acura was in an area south of Olds.

Bereza said Didsbury and Olds RCMP came across the car in a ditch on Rge. Rd. 15 and set up spike belts on the roadway north and south of the vehicle's location in case the driver tried to flee.

Although police executed a "high-risk" take-down of the suspect, he added, the man surrendered peacefully.

Because police did not know if there were other people in the vehicle who may have fled the scene on foot, a police canine unit was brought in to search the area as a "preventative measure," Bereza said.

A Calgary police helicopter was also used to find and apprehend the suspect.

Emergency medical personnel did attend to the suspect when he was taken into custody at the scene to assess his condition since he had blood on his clothes, but Bereza said that no injuries resulted from the arrest.

Clorina was charged with two counts of second-degree murder on May 17 and his next court appearance was scheduled for May 21.

Fire bans lifted

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

Due to recent rain, both county and town officials lifted fire bans that were imposed earlier this month, just in time for the long weekend.

The bans included open fires, charcoal briquette barbecues, campfires, fires used for cooking, burning barrels, and the discharge of all fireworks, said Fire Chief Pat Dodman.

The bans were both lifted on Friday, May 16.

To keep updated on other fire bans still in effect throughout the province, people can visit Alberta Fire Bans at (www.albertafirebans.ca).

Westglen School got a special visit from Spencer West on Tuesday, May 14, as he stopped in to talk at a school assembly while on his way from Edmonton to Calgary.

West walked from Edmonton to Calgary in less than two weeks - a feat in itself, but even more so due to the fact that his legs were amputated when he was a child due to a genetic disorder.

Being without legs has not stopped him from doing great things with what he has, as he has climbed Mt. Kilimanjaro in Africa, built a school in Kenya, and spent much of his adult life campaigning for Free the Children (FTC) and more recently, FTC's Water Initiative, he said.

His goal for the trek was to earn $150,000 for the initiative, through which $10 can provide clean water for one person in Africa for an entire year, he noted.

While speaking in the Westglen School gym, he congratulated students on the efforts they made to raise money for his journey, which was announced at We Day last fall.

"It doesn't matter who you are, where you're from, we all have the ability and responsibility to help someone else," said West.

Westglen School's vice-principal Carolyn Massel said West was "one of the most inspiring speakers" that has ever come to Westglen.

"I think he really struck a chord with the kids because they had - through their involvement with We Day... and because there's been such heightened awareness about the cause that he was walking for, the kids really knew what he was all about and what he was hoping to accomplish," said Massel.

The students understood who he is and what he's about before he visited, so being able to hear him speak to them was a confirmation for them and the effort they have been putting in to raise money for his cause, she said.

"We had given him a giant cheque (at the assembly) for $1,570, and then that morning, RBC phoned and said we had overfilled our penny bags, so we had actually raised an extra $100," she said.

The fundraising efforts started after about 20 students attended We Day at the Saddledome in Calgary, an event held across North America in various locations and endorsed by celebrities, she added.

"So the kids really worked hard. And that's kind of We Day's thing... What they impressed on the kids was it's the little things we do," she said.

"Your efforts don't have to be grandiose, but We Day kind of prides itself in doing things like bake sale by bake sale, activity by activity...if each of us is doing something small then it can amount to something significant."

She noted that the school has already registered for We Day 2013 in Calgary, which will also be held in the fall.

Westglen students walk around town in support of Spencer West and the Free the Children organization on May 14.

Students pitch in for penny drive

BY TESIA RUNNETT
Westglen School

Students at Westglen Middle School were collecting pennies the past couple of months to help provide water to people in Third-World countries that don't have access to it.

Free the Children (FTC), a charitable organization that encourages sustainable development and education in Third-World countries, chose pennies because the penny is no longer being made, and this would be a good cause to put them towards, say officials.

According to the FTC organization, approximately 1.1 billion people don't have regular access to unpolluted water, and 2.6 billion people don't have enough to satisfy basic needs.

"So they have to find water from places like dirty ditches and rivers and lakes," said Patrick Everett, a Westglen student who is part of the movement.

Two thousand five hundred pennies will provide enough water for one child for a lifetime, through the construction of wells.

The school's goal was to get 20 pennies from each student.

To encourage bringing in pennies, a penny war was waged between grades to see which one could raise the most money.

In total, they raised $750 in pennies. Along with the penny drive, students also sold floats, which raised $173; popcorn, which raised $95; cupcakes, which raised $155; had a hat day, which raised $65; and sold tickets to a lunch lounge, which raised $457, according to vice-principal Carolyn Massel.

Altogether, Westglen School raised $1671 through the efforts of the We Day students.

"I think we did a great job," says Jeff Thompson, principal of Westglen school, "I think the kids really came through for this."

We Day, an event in October, was what led these students to action. Students learned about FTC. Free the Children was founded by a boy named Craig Keilburger who learned about the problems going on in Kenya. This event was expanded to a world-wide event. We Day is all about youth empowerment and creating a positive change in the world.

They are trying to send the message that as a young generation they can still change as much as an adult.

Who do you know... that is celebrating any of these special events? • Birth of a child • Wedding • Special Anniversary: 25, 40, 50, 60, etc.

Golf club getting back into the swing

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

The Didsbury Golf Course is open and ready for another season of leisure and competitive golfing, according to officials.

The non-profit course reopened as of May 3, and though they are a little behind due to inclement weather, treasurer Shelly Miller said the course is ready to play on.

"We just need a little rain and then we'll be good," said Miller.

The course is unchanged from last year for the most part, however, she noted that officials have laid down some recycled asphalt between holes six and seven, and if it holds up, they will try applying it to other places around the course.

The course hosts a men's league every Monday night, seniors' league Wednesday mornings, and ladies' fun night on Thursday nights, she said.

"And Fridays we have what's called Nine and Dine, which is open to members and non-members," she added, "where (golfers) can have a round of golf, steak dinner and a beverage."

The Nine and Dine is $29.95 for non-members and $13.95 for members, she noted.

The course also offers a juniors' program, where the membership costs $63 and gets them six lessons which are held Wednesday mornings before seniors' league, starting at the end of July, she said.

"And we've got a whole schedule of tournaments booked, for both members and non-members. The Hole-In-One (on June 1) is the first tournament we have lined up this year, open to members and non-members."

The tournament, which costs $100 to enter, consists of competitors getting 18 chances to get a hole-in-one, with prizes for the closest drive to the pin, prizes on every hole, and cash prizes for each division, she said.

For those who just want to play for fun, she noted prices range from $20 to $35 per round, depending on the day and whether golfers want to play nine or 18 holes. The course also offers punch cards for non-members, which allow them to pay for nine games and get the 10th free on weekdays.

"And the restaurant is open to the public. Lots of people think they can't come up unless they're a member or they're golfing, but we are trying to promote that it's open to everybody to come up," she said.

"We're the only restaurant in town where you can come up and look at the mountains on a good day."

The club is still accepting memberships and Miller welcomes those interested in learning more about the course to visit its website at (www.didsburygolfclub.org), or find it on Facebook.

Editorial Imposed settlements never the best solution

The Redford government decision last week to impose a new contract settlement on Alberta teachers and school boards marks the end of more than two years of sometimes bitter and controversial negotiations.

And while parents and students can now rest assured that there will likely be labour peace on the education front for the next four years, the fact the settlement was imposed instead of being reached amicably does not necessarily bode well for future labour negotiations involving the Redford Tories.

DAN SINGLETON

With almost all of the province's school boards and Alberta Teachers' Association (ATA) locals in support of the deal, the province had no choice but to impose a provincewide settlement through the Assurance for Students Act, said Education Minister Jeff Johnson.

"We made every effort to ensure all boards had the ability to reach a negotiated agreement," said Johnson. "But after more than two and a half years at the bargaining table, we need to move forward with a deal that the majority of boards and teachers considered fair enough to adopt."

"Legislating the framework agreement safeguards the education of Alberta kids in a stable and supportive learning environment and helps ensure we live within our means in these difficult fiscal times."

The imposed settlement has not been universally applauded, with Wildrose official Opposition education critic Bruce McAllister expressing concerns that the government did not include school boards in the final negotiations.

NDP education critic David Eggen said the imposed settlement is anything but good news.

"This deal has proven to be not good for school boards, not good for teachers and students, and parents as well," said Eggen. "So perhaps the minister should take note and get back to the drawing board."

"It shows the government has to wear this. They came out with a bad deal predicated on this idea that they were short of money, which is very debatable. Now they have to ram it through."

With their comfortable majority, the Redford PCs can, of course, pass the Assurance for Students Act without trouble – and that's something the opposition parties can do nothing about.

While it would have been better to have a mutually agreed settlement rather than the government-imposed solution arrived at last week, the fact the negotiations were wrapped up is good news for Alberta students and parents.

Keeping students in classrooms is in the best interests of the province as a whole, and this new settlement will do just that.

However, it would be a mistake for the Redford Tories to now believe that Albertans will necessarily support imposed settlements in future negotiations with other labour groups.

Letters to the Editor Unannounced street cleaning

Where is the beef? It's with the Town of Didsbury's public works!

It seems public works doesn't know the meaning of communication. Street curbside cleaning is underway and no one told us! No signs, no schedule, nothing in the paper.

So one morning, the machine comes down our street and weaves in and out of the cars that are parked.

Never mind that it's garbage pickup day so all of the bins are out on the curb! A notice would have been nice.

Lucky for us, we had a chance to move our car because we didn't want rock chips hitting it, but the other people didn't have that opportunity.

I called the office and the guy said they are doing "random" streets, so putting up a sign wasn't an option.

They will have to come back "more than once" is what I was told.

What a waste of taxpayer dollars. The lamest excuse I've ever heard of.

The machine doesn't get to the curb if the cars and the garbage bins are there, so what's the point of doing it at all?

Plus the chance of damaging someone's car because the brushes throw rock chips around – and don't tell me it doesn't because I saw the gravel going flying outside of the brushes.

Do what Mike Holmes always says: "Do it right the first time and you won't have to come back a second time."

L.M. Attwood
Didsbury

Open letter to the Government of Alberta

Dear Alberta government,

As you know, 91,000 Alberta children live in poverty today. Some sleep in church basements with other homeless people, some go to school hungry. We know you are very busy, so we wanted to help by writing this note to the hungry kids for you. You can simply clip it out and give to a small, hungry Albertan.

Yours truly,
Sharon Prenerost and Carolyn Pogue
on behalf of The Child
Wellbeing Initiative,
Alberta
www.childwellbeingAlberta.org

Dear hungry child,

It has come to our attention that your lunch bag is frequently empty and that you often go to school without breakfast. We're sorry about that. We in Alberta have a lot of money but we must be careful with it. Money doesn't grow on trees, you know.

And don't get me started on raising taxes. The adults we know don't believe in sharing like that. But money isn't the real issue anyway.

We know that people in other parts of Canada and in the world provide healthy food for hungry kids. But our approach is uniquely Albertan.

We are working hard on the question of WHY you can't bring your own lunch to school.

We diligently seek answers to this question.

For example, you may not have lunch because the shelters were full and you slept in a car last night.

Most cars don't have kitchens so that could explain it.

Re: Burnout Box at Show 'n Shine

I would like to thank the volunteers that helped out at the Burn Out Box to allow me to put on a little tire smoke show. Although it seems a little childish and crazy, it has been something I have wanted to do legally all my adult life.

Thanks again for letting me be a kid for a short time, and next year I'll be back with more smoke for the people that enjoy this type of destruction.

Regards,

Alberta doctors to sign agreement with province

Didsbury doctor doesn't wholly support contract, but says it's a good starting point

BY PATRICIA RILEY
AND KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

Alberta doctors, including those in Didsbury, are being asked to ratify a tentative seven-year agreement with the provincial government to provide physician services within Alberta.

Covering the years 2011 to 2018, the agreement includes a three-year compensation freeze for doctors, with a pay increase in 2014.

There would be a 2.5 per cent increase in each of 2014-2015 and 2015-2016, and for the final two years of the agreement, there would be a cost of living adjustment.

A lump sum of $68 million would be distributed to physicians to address financial challenges and it is proposed that a physician compensation committee be struck to oversee compensation practices. This includes reviewing and adjusting relative payment rates or fees.

The agreement also includes recognition of the Alberta Medical Association as the ongoing representative of physicians for compensation negotiations. Commitment is also pledged for an ongoing agreement that reflects the permanency of the relationship between Alberta Health Services and the AMA.

The legal agreement is based on the memorandum of understanding reached between the government and the AMA, the organization representing about 95 per cent of Alberta's practising physicians as well as resident physicians and medical students.

Didsbury physician Dr. Karen Brunner said that though she is not entirely happy with the agreement, the fact the government is sitting down and including physicians in discussions is a good start.

"Although we recognize that this agreement is far from perfect, the 'wins' within this agreement are significant," said Brunner.

"These wins include enshrining the AMA as the sole negotiating and representative body on behalf of all Alberta physicians and the 'ever-greening' of key physician support programs."

She said she feels that Alberta's doctors are going to be much better off than they are presently, and though it's not a perfect agreement, the fact that the government is willing to sign a contract is a win, because until now, they have been working without a contract.

"It will be a good base to work from for the future for more support for physicians," she concluded.

Or, you might have been couch surfing with your mom because your dad is scary when he drinks; everyone just forgot to pack a lunch for you. Or maybe your parents are working two minimum wage jobs and slept in. Or, maybe they had to choose between paying the rent and buying food. I don't know your reason, but there must be an answer. We have many highly paid folks working on this. Rest assured: we take your situation seriously.

We hold meetings with important people. We make charts and publish slick booklets. We have websites, links, phone numbers, everything. We are busy doing very important work. All on your behalf.

You see, we are concerned about your welfare and your future. After all, if things work out well for you, you might grow up and become one of us. If they don't, you may grow up to become a gang member, school dropout, suicide statistic, career criminal or suffer chronic illness. Or, maybe you won't grow up at all. Do you see that there is a lot riding on the answer to why you don't have lunch? See how worried we are about this?

I hope that a student will share lunch with you today or that your teacher will bring food from home or some volunteer will make you a sandwich. That would be nice, wouldn't it?

I must end now. I have an important lunch meeting; I can't miss that.

Yours sincerely,

CNWA wrestlers come to town

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

The Canadian National Wrestling Alliance (CNWA) put on an exciting event at the Didsbury Arena on May 9, according to officials.

"They put on a great show and did an amazing job interacting with the audience," said Stefanie Halfyard, facilities and events coordinator for the town.

"They even had wrestlers available to sign posters and memorabilia, along with videos for sale."

About 75 people of all ages came to enjoy the show, and she said they were "very entertained and had nothing but great things to say about the event. The enthusiasm from the crowd filled the arena with laughter and excitement - never a dull moment," she added.

She said she felt that the CNWA put on a great show and all who attended had a night to remember.

The wrestlers competed in a series of matches between themselves, with both men and ladies, she noted, adding that the final match was between CNWA Champion Bobby Sharp and former CNWA World Heavyweight Championship holder Adam Pearce.

Fatal rollover

A single-vehicle rollover proved fatal for a man on the way to Burnt Timber Provincial Recreation Area on Friday, May 10.

Shortly after 6 p.m., a grey Dodge truck rolled over after passing a vehicle on westbound Twp. Rd. 304, according to police. Police are not releasing the 36-year-old man's name, said Cpl. Warren Wright.

He explained the driver had just completed passing another vehicle before the intersection of Rge. Rd. 53, when his tires caught the shoulder of the road, sending the vehicle into the ditch.

The truck then hit the embankment of Rge. Rd. 53, sending it into the air before rolling multiple times in the ditch on the other side of Rge. Rd. 53, he noted.

By the time emergency crews arrived, the man was already deceased, he added.

Wright said the man, who was from Castlegar, B.C., was working as a carpenter in Water Valley. Police have notified the next-of-kin.

The Cremona Fire Department attended as well as RCMP and a provincial investigator and collision analyst out of Red Deer, he said.

"The truck had a lift kit and oversized tires which may have contributed to losing control," said Wright.

"Yes, they're pretty to look at, but when it comes to handling on road surfaces, it can be very tricky."

He added that the road was a paved rural highway and speed was a factor in the death.

Sellers beware

A wallet went missing from a home just outside of Carstairs on Sunday, May 12, shortly after noon, according to Sgt. Jeff Jacobson.

"A male had attended this residence where there was a vehicle for sale, he spoke to the homeowner and then went into the residence, then said he was going to go out to get his wife who was parked out on the street," said Jacobson.

He said the man never returned and afterward, the resident found her wallet had been taken.

The male is described as about 5 feet 8 inches, 165 pounds, and was wearing a blue ball cap, blue shirt, blue jeans, and was noted to have tattooed forearms, he said.

"We want to remind the public that if people are selling anything and have someone come into your residence to keep an eye out at all times, and especially be aware where your purse, wallet, keys, those sorts of things are. Anything in that front door area."

Police Briefs

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

He said often the culprits will employ some sort of distraction so they can take what they want.

More vehicle thefts

Police received multiple reports of car thefts and rummaging last week, as a number of cars were burgled during the night between Sunday and Monday, May 12 and 13, said Sgt. Jeff Jacobson.

The thefts occurred on West Heights Crescent, the 2100 block of 21 Street and West Heights Close, he noted.

Some items stolen include subwoofers, amps, and a Playstation 3, among other things, he said.

"We also had about 20 CDs, a USB adapter and air compressor stolen, while another vehicle was just rummaged through but nothing was taken," he said.

Related to these and some of the other thefts that have occurred over the past few weeks, he said police are following up on a number of leads and are in the process of interviewing a number of witnesses.

Porn virus scam resurfaces

Police received a report from an individual in town who was visiting legal pornographic websites when their computer locked up and a popup came up with their photo, stating that they had to pay a fine of $250.

The popup said that the person was caught viewing child pornography – though they were not – and only through a credit card payment would the charge be waived and the computer unlocked, said Jacobson.

He said that the person actually paid the 'fine' with their credit card, not realizing that it is a scam.

"We're just reminding the public that these are scams and not to provide credit card information if a message like that pops up," he said.

"It continues to happen and it's amazing how many people are being impacted by it. We certainly don't see it going away anytime soon," he added.

Stolen plate

A licence plate was stolen from a vehicle that had been parked on Westhill Drive, said Jacobson.

He noted that it was reported missing on May 11, though the resident wasn't sure exactly when the plate disappeared.

The plate number is VKN-823, and it was stolen off a 2009 Nissan Maxima, he said.

Remembering
Douglas Allan Clarke

July 1963 - May 21, 2012

Missed everyday,
Loved every minute,
Always in our thoughts.

Family

Douglas Allan Clarke
May 22, 2012

Don't grieve for me, for I am free
God seen my struggle,
He seen my broken heart,
And He heard my cries.
I took his hand when I heard his call.
I turned my back and left it all.
I could not stay another day.
To laugh, to love, to work or play.
Tasks left undone must stay that way.
I found my peace at the end of the day.
If my parting has left a void,
Then fill it with remembered joys.
My life was full - good family -
Good friends - good times and a loved ones touch.
Please love and keep each other as our Father said to do.
Forever loved and dearly missed,
Love Mom
